

POST-ACTIVITY REPORT

Local Project Monitoring Committee

ACTIVITY:	Strengthening of Local Project Monitoring Committees in Region VIII
DATE:	May 28, 2026
VENUE:	Via Zoom teleconference
PARTICIPANTS:	LPMC Members of Gamay, Northern Samar

REPORT SUMMARY

I. OBJECTIVES OF THE ACTIVITY:

- The activity aims to:
1. Capacitate the LPMC members in the navigation of the new system of LPMC.
 2. Encourage the LPMC into documenting all LPMC related activities into the making of the most significant change.

II. HIGHLIGHTS OF THE ACTIVITY:

Gathered virtually through Zoom on May 28, 2026, the activity was shaped by two heartfelt and strategic intentions, each designed to walk hand-in-hand toward a stronger, more reflective LPMC.

The first intention was to truly capacitate every LPMC member in navigating the new system. This was never meant to be a cold technical briefing, but rather a patient and empowering journey into the heart of a tool built to make their monitoring work lighter, faster, and more connected. Through the shared screens of a virtual room, the session gently unpacked the system’s logic, clicking through dashboards and data fields, not to overwhelm with features, but to instill a quiet confidence. The goal was simple yet profound: that after the session, no member would feel left behind by technology, that logging an update, pulling a report, or tracking a project milestone would feel less like a task and more like second nature. In this way, the activity aimed to transform digital hesitation into capable, eager hands ready to steward the committee’s responsibilities in a new and smarter way.

The second intention reached beyond screens and software into the soul of the committee’s work. It sought to encourage the LPMC to see documentation not as paperwork, but as the sacred act of capturing their own legacy—gathering every site visit note, every deliberation, every small win and honest struggle—and braiding them together into the making of the most significant change story. This was an invitation to become the storytellers of their own impact. Instead of letting valuable moments dissolve in memory, members were called to actively collect the evidence of transformation as it happened, so that later, together, they could ask, “What shifted profoundly because we were here, watching and acting?” The documentation would become the fertile soil from which one powerful, human story would grow—a story that speaks louder than statistics, that moves stakeholders, and that reminds the committee itself why their quiet, consistent work matters immensely. The activity thus planted a seed of intentional reflection, hoping it would bloom into a practice where every form filled and every minute recorded ultimately feeds a narrative of change that the community can own and celebrate.

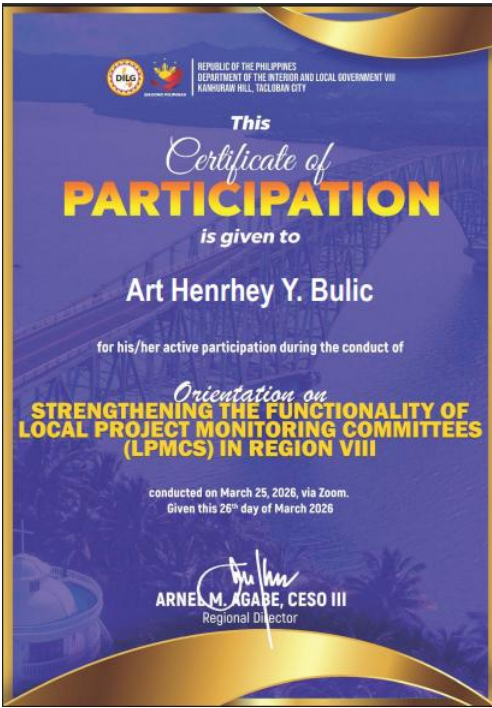

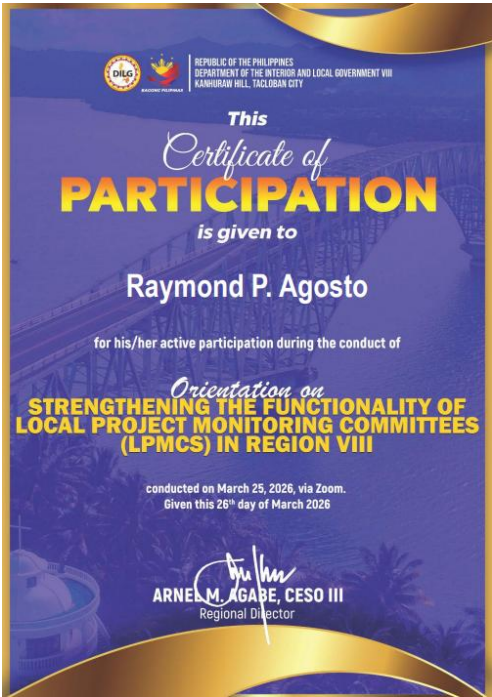

III. OUTPUT/S OF THE ACTIVITY:

- Enhanced understanding of the PMC Functionality Indicators among LPMC members.
- Increased awareness of the roles, responsibilities, and mandates of the committee.
- Renewed commitment and active participation of members in carrying out project monitoring activities.
- Strengthened coordination and collaboration among LPMC members and stakeholders.
- Improved knowledge on the standards and requirements for maintaining a functional Local Project Monitoring Committee.
